OYS READY FOR LIKENS LEO DRESSEN

at Big School Cen- St. Louis Writer Predicts Great Season for Popular Salt Lake Player.

Sid C. Kenner, staff correspondent of the St. Louis Times at St. Augustine, Fia., the training grounds of the Cardi-nals, has an interesting article in his paper regarding Leo Dressen, who "went up" from the Salt Lake team last year. Kenner pays the popular Salt Laker a high tribute. His article follows:

There are some players just fitted out for a single position. Miller Huggins started playing second base the first day he tossed a bull, and he has been there ever since. The same with many others. The exception to this rule, though, is Leo Dressen, who promises to change the Cardinals' infield and become the regular first baseman.

Dressen is one of those few natural bail players. He is handy almost any place, and now he is doing the first-base sturt. When Leo started out with the bail and glove he was an outfelder. That was tack in 1910 at Larned, Kan. Leo went to school there, was the idol of his school chimis because he always owned a ball, bat and glove.

In the kid days one who is so fortunate as to own such a combination always is the manager, captain and high boss of the town's nine. That was "Dress," as he is called. And he elected himself to be the right fielder, because he delighted in running over the barbed-wire fence for the wicked drives.

The town of Larned wasn't big enough for Dressen, He was too fast and too clever for the town team. The result was that when the Kansas State league was organized in 1911, the manager of the Lyons club grabbed Leo. The Lyons' leader wasn't in need of outfielders at the time, though, but was shy a left-handed pitcher.

Dressen heaved the ball from the outfield with his left paw, and one handed pitcher.

Dressen heaved the ball from the outfield with his left paw, and one day, when the Lyons club was shy a pitcher, he consented to go to the hill. He won his game, giving the opposition but four hits and not a run.

After that performance Dressen was satisfied that he could pitch, so he decided to give up the outfield job, because he didn't have to work every day. Starring with the Lyons club, his fame soon reached way out to the west.

Before the 1911 season was over Dressen was a member of the Salt Lake City (Union association) club. He arrived as Pitcher Dressen.

When need arose Dressen donned the first baseman's mitt, gloved everything in sight, poled a double, two triples and a single his first day as a first sacker.

He played in 199 games last year and hit for a .326 average. Further, he scored 102 runs, which is quite a nifty record.

Now for a pen picture about this new recruit. He throws with the left and hits the same way. When you are the record in the same way. Now for a pen pretary and the left and hits the same way. When you see him on first you'll see another Jiggs Donobue, the famous White Sox first sacker. Lee is just as nimble and fast as Jiggs, and has the
